Highball – tall and fairly slim, standard glass

Lowball – rocks glass, old fashioned glass, short tumbler. What you'd sip whisky or Baileys from Coupe – stemmed with a wide bowl, similar to a martini glass. Although still easy to spill, significantly easier to handle over the straight-edged, unforgiving martini glass.

Hurricane – tall glass, short stem, curvy, large capacity. Exactly the glass you'd picture if you imagine any fruity holiday cocktail with colourful garnishes

Flute – tall and thin, long stem, small capacity. For fizzy wines and champagnes

“Small volume high ABV” - spirit forward, often with citrus and sugar, does not fill the glass. To be sipped. For example, a dry gin martini (essentially cold gin) is a million miles away from a Pornstar martini (fruity juicy, albeit tart), despite the similarity in name
